I'd like to write a short description of a public event, which I have seen on TV recently.

This is an event where many people gather together to watch Victory Day parade with tanks, veterans, soldiers and etc.

This event takes place in all cities of Russia, but I want to tell about parade in Moscow. It is held on the Red Square on the ninth of May. In this event involved the Russian army which was going a long distance. In this parade are involved also veterans, people who was taking part in the second world war. This event ended by shaking hands veterans with president and by speech of the president.
