My favourite Russian public event is Maslenitsa. It is an old festival which symbolizes a final goodbye to winter. By the way, my family and I take part in it every year. Traditionally Maslenitsa is celebrated at the end of February in the central park in Kaliningrad. Last year we took part in it so there was special area for carnival, open-air theatre performances and firework display.

Everyone looked happy and enjoyed the friendly atmosphere of the festival. Women and girls were in colourful clothes. Furthermore, people danced, sang national songs and ate pancakes until they burst.

My favourite part of festival is the end. There is a big bonfire and sometimes people can jump over the fire.
